

HINES GAVE AID TO ELECT STEPHENSON?

STORY IS REPEATED IN TESTIMONY OF WIRT H. COOK BEFORE COMMITTEE TODAY.

MAY ARREST SHIELDS

Man Who Is Said to Have Been Employed by Hines to Put Over the Job, to Be Brought Before Committee.

Milwaukee, Oct. 20.—The story that Edward Hines, the lumberman, helped "put over" the election of Senator Stephenson, and that Hines employed Robert Shields to work the case at Washington and Madison, was repeated today to the Stephenson investigating committee.

Wirt H. Cook of Duluth, declared he secured the information from Daniel Hines of Duluth, another lumberman. This information was that Shields had a falling out with Hines, because Shields wanted fifteen thousand dollars for the work and Hines refused to pay that much, saying that Stephenson ought to pay half of it.

Shortly after hearing this, Cook testified that he met Shields on a train.

"I asked Shields how he came out with Hines in the dispute over the job at Madison. 'Oh, that's fixed up, and Shields'."

Cook denied he made any of the statements attributed to him in the previous testimony of Lieut. Governor Morris.

He declared he never had said he had direct information.

A bench warrant was issued for the arrest of Robert Shields with instructions that he be brought before the committee.

Nearing End.

The committee began drawing up the lines for the closing up of the investigation today by directing the Stephenson committee to submit by Monday a list of witnesses they expected to examine and the substance of the testimony expected of them.

The committee discharged a number of witnesses today. All these witnesses were held in connection with the alleged meeting at Warden Stone's house to "frame up" an accounting of certain money received by Stone.

More Testimony.

Cook also testified he overheard Edward Hines say over the telephone at the Grand Pacific hotel, Chicago, on May 1, 1909, when someone talked to him and evidently asked how he was getting along at Washington: "Oh, I am having a—of a time. For instance, the old Stephenson. After I went and elected him he goes to Washington and starts working for me. I had a terrible job getting him lined up." Senator Stephenson smiled and flushed at this testimony.

TABLES ARE TURNED ON LORIMER WITNESS

After Denying He Ever Asked Holstlaw to Come to His Saloon, Broderick Is Forced to Admit Otherwise.

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 20.—After having denied that he ever wrote Representative Holstlaw to come to his saloon, State Senator John Broderick was forced to admit to the Lorimer committee that he had.

Yesterday, Broderick, under examination regarding the story that he invited Holstlaw to his saloon where the latter is alleged to have received a share of the slush money, absolutely denied ever having asked Holstlaw to call.

Today, however, the committee's attorney, signing evidence Broderick's lawyers asking Holstlaw to be on hand. The witness identified them as his own, but swore he couldn't remember writing them.

Marionette, Oct. 20.—Playing "crack of the whip" with companions in a school yard here, Reuben Duffen aged 1 year was instantly killed when he was cracked from the end of the line. The child's arm was broken and other injuries sustained. He gasped and died in full view of his companions.

TESTIMONY IN CASE CAUSES EXCITEMENT

Servant Tells of Rows in the Standard Home Previous to Husband's Death.

Ontonagon, Mich., Oct. 20.—"Dolly" Hammes, the star witness for the prosecution, resumed the stand at the opening of court today in the case of Mrs. Stannard, charged with poisoning her husband.

The witness admitted that instead of going down cellar after breakfast for beer, as she testified at the inquest, the trip occurred before breakfast.

The witness failed to identify the cup produced by the prosecution and which the state alleged Stannard drank his last cup of coffee out of.

Miss Hammes said Stannard was drunk and abusive, that the Stannards didn't always get along together.

PASTOR ARRESTED ON MURDER CHARGE BY THE POLICE

Coast Minister Is Held for Poisoning Miss Avis Linnell, Music Student

Boston, Mass., Oct. 20.—Rev. Clarence V. T. Richeson, pastor of the Baptist church of Cambridge, was arrested today as a result of the investigation as to the death by poisoning of Miss Avis Linnell, a student of the New England Conservatory of Music. Two days before Miss Linnell's death cards were issued for the wedding of Richeson and Miss Violet Edmonds, on October 31st.

Miss Linnell died on Saturday and it was announced she committed suicide by poisoning. The police charge that Richeson purchased a quantity of cyanide of potassium at a drug store at Newton Center, on Oct. 10.

Warrant Sworn Out.

A warrant charging first degree murder against Rev. Richeson was issued at 11:25 today by Judge Duff of the criminal court. The warrant was granted immediately after druggist William Hulse of Newton, Mass., absolutely identified Richeson as the man to whom he sold the cyanide of potassium last week. Pretty little Miss Linnell was a student at the Boston conservatory of music.

She was 17 years old. On the day of her death she read in the Boston papers the announcement of Rev. Richeson's engagement to Miss Violet Edmonds, the heiress daughter of M. G. Edmonds, a resident of fashionable Brookline, Boston suburb. Miss Linnell was said to have worn the minister's engagement ring and prepared her wedding gown. She was buried in it.

Met at Hyannis.

Rev. Richeson first met Miss Linnell at Hyannis, Mass., her home, where they met and became engaged. Miss Linnell later went to Boston to study music.

In having the poison, Druggist Hulse said Richeson wanted it to kill a dog. Hulse suggested cyanide and Richeson immediately bought it, the druggist later told the police.

Believing it to be medicine and trusting him implicitly. When arraigned Dr. Richeson pleaded not guilty.

SELECTION OF JURY CAUSES EXCITEMENT IN M'NAMARA CASE

State and Defense Still Hold Divided Opinions as to How Jurors Should View Explosion.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 20.—With the issues squarely framed, the state demanding that the exclusion of venireman T. W. Adams, who says he believes the Los Angeles Times building was destroyed by a gas explosion and the defense demanding the same ruling in the cases of George W. McKee and Otto A. Johnson, who declare it must have been wrecked by dynamite, interest in the McNamara case is at fever heat today.

When court convened assistant district attorney Horton continued questioning Adams and challenged him for bias.

The situation is one of the most complex in the history of California criminal jurisprudence, because of the contention of the state that while men who believe dynamite was used were capable of serving as jurors, those who believe in the gas theory cannot.

The outcome is awaited with great interest but it is expected that Judge Brodwell will reserve his decision. When court opened today only eleven men were in the box the state having challenged John Roberts, the first man examined because he had conscientious scruples against capital punishment.

Received Answer To Letter To Rockefeller and Numerous Samples For Her School Room.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 20.—Ida M. Tarbell was paid John D. Rockefeller black as she can, defunct refining company may lay their business ruin at his door, and a portion of the great public may class him among the undesirable citizens, but for one country school teacher in Wisconsin the richest man on earth is "just the latest gentleman in the world."

Miss Velma Pitton, who lives near Mazomanie in this county, is only nineteen years old and holds a first-grade certificate for teaching in the township school, but she is important enough to receive from Mr. Rockefeller a comprehensive exhibit of Standard Oil products for the mere asking, together with a personal note from the oil king, expressing his interest in her endeavor and "begging to be of still further service."

Miss Pitton willingly related how it all happened.

"Last summer I attended teachers' institute at Mt. Horeb," she said. "Prof. Banting of Stoughton told us what fine chances there was to get different manufacturers to send samples of their products for use in the classroom. So I thought I would like to have a lot of samples of materials manufactured by the Standard Oil Company. A short time ago I wrote to Mr. Rockefeller. I haven't a copy of the letter for I didn't save it, but I know this is the way I wrote it: 'Mr. John D. Rockefeller, New York, N. Y.

"Dear Sir: I am one of the teachers in the country schools. I would like to have you send me a number of samples of the different products which you manufacture. If you can send them I shall be very much obliged."

"The other day I received a letter from Mr. Rockefeller himself which said:

"I have sent you under separate cover a package of the various products and byproducts manufactured by the Standard Oil Co. The express has been prepaid. If after examining these samples you should desire additional ones I shall be very glad to hear from you. I want you to write me and tell me if you received the shipment in good order."

"To this I replied:

"Dear Mr. Rockefeller: I received everything in good order and I want to thank you for sending the samples. The pupils in my school will be very glad to study these products but I do not believe that we will ask for any more. It seems that I have had my share."

"After this," continued Miss Pitton, "I told a number of school teachers that I had received from Mr. Rockefeller and they wrote to him also, but they didn't get such nice packages and they only received a few samples. The box he sent me weighed sixty-five pounds and it contained 170 candles, decorated, plain and white and of all colors; twenty-one bottles of oil; two pails of axle grease and two tumblers called 'Night Lights.' These looked like little glass saucers with a little candle set in the center, and the printed description said they were to be burned in the sick room. Then there were two small tumblers about the size of an individual salt shaker, and these had a little candle in the center. Then there were four packages of different grades of paraffin, and four different kinds of wax; also thirty-five lighters. These look like pieces of string about two feet long, but they are all covered with wax on the outside like little candles. They said these were to be used in place of matches and for lighting the gas. Then there were twelve little silver candles and twelve gold candleholders, and two brass candleholders. 'Every package was boxed separately within a big box and all wrapped up in tissue paper except the bottles, which were packed in sawdust. And I didn't have to pay a cent of express."

Miss Pitton is the daughter of James Pitton, a farmer, and was educated in this county. She is now teaching her second year at the Mazomanie high school in year of country school.

PROHIBITIONISTS TO HAVE STATE PAPER

First Issue of New Organ, To Be Known as "The Partisan," Will Be Published at Madison Next Week.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 20.—The prohibition party in Wisconsin is on the war path in the coming campaign, and one of its enterprises will be the publication of a state paper, the first issue of which will appear about the middle of next week. It will be called "The Partisan," and will be published in this city under the editorship of State Chairman, J. H. Smith. William C. Dean of Heloit will be field manager and Alfred B. Tarran of Madison, office manager. The general style of the paper will be similar to LaFollette's magazine.

While primarily a state paper, it will be national in character, according to Mr. Smith. The Wisconsin prohibitionists have been the great proponent in adhering to the middle-of-the-road policy, "waiting to time" in the words of Chairman Smith, "on the compromise, option or popular vote measure that have proved dismal failures." The paper will be the organ for emphasizing the need of supporting party leaders and policy. Its publishers aim to make the paper fill the place made vacant by the recent suspension of the National Prohibitionist of Chicago.

The state central committee has decided to hold its state convention in Madison, Feb. 22, 1912. One thousand delegates are expected, said Chairman Smith today.

"The platform to be adopted," he said, "will probably be more radical and clearer than any ever put by the party. No half-way measures like county option will have any show; they will be decidedly negatived, you may be sure of that. We will set our aim at not less than 25,000 votes, which will be a gain of about fifty per cent. The delegates will plan the elimination of local tickets as well as state. All over the state there is a growing interest in this movement, and it may be accounted for largely because we are cutting loose from all attempts to compromise the issue. We are emphasizing the party lines against the non-partisan as the only way to win victories."

Automobile campaigning will be planned later. The committee is flourishing on a large number of stump speakers and house-to-house workers, and quantities of literature are being mailed from the state headquarters to all voters in the state.

PRESIDENT VISITS WYOMING TOWNS ON EASTWARD JOURNEY

Takes Ride To Big Horn Country and Scene of Custer Massacre—Chief of Crow Indians Pays Him Visit.

Shoshone, Wyo., Oct. 20.—Fully recovered from the sore throat which resulted from his enthusiastic speech making, President Taft today returned to Wyoming.

Three cities were on the chief executive's schedule for the day, Sheridan, Gillette, and Newcastle. When he arrived here, the President was taken for an automobile ride into the Big Horn country and the scene of the Custer massacre.

Old Chief Plenty Coos, of the Crow Indians, arrayed in full war paint and feathers, paid a ceremonial visit to the "Great White Father." Tonight the President will spend at Newcastle as the guest of Congressman Frank Mondell. Tomorrow he will start for South Dakota.

United States Senator Warren and Congressman Mondell met the president at the station. The most interesting person on the platform, however, was Curly T. Crow, an Indian scout supposed to have been the sole survivor of the Custer massacre. Curly wore a heavy buckskin coat, a wide sombrero and white man's "pants" and moccasins. The president shook hands with him before entering the automobile.

WARDENS WILL HELP TO SEINE GARFISH

Fish and Game Department Will Supervise Raising of Sissabagama Lake, in Sawyer County—Beavers Multiplying.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 20.—The state fish and game department next week will raise Sissabagama lake in the east end of Sawyer county, for garfish. Property owners, many of them summer resorters, took the initiative in securing the department's help to rid the lake of the undesirable fish. The sealing will be done by the property owners under the supervision of the department.

Many reports have come to the department that beavers are "unusually plentiful in the northland and that they are at work building houses and dams. These animals are protected by law throughout the year. Some are being caught by a deputy of the department for transfer to the United States government, which will place them on its reserves in northern Wisconsin. Many little lakes are formed by the dams built by these industrious quadrupeds.

OFFICIALS OF BOTH ROADS WERE HERE

Nearly All of the Officials Passed Through Here Yesterday on Tours of Inspection.

Yesterday at 4:15 the officials of the Northwestern Railway company passed through here on their special train of two sleepers, a buffet car and day coach, on their way to inspect the new line which is nearly completed between Sparta and Milwaukee. On the special were President Gardner, General Manager Cantillon, and Marvin Hught, chairman of the board of directors, and nearly all of the directors of the road. The special stopped at Sparta last night and from there will go to Milwaukee via the new line. The officials came from Chicago and are inspecting the affairs of the road. Wednesday night President Harding of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road spent the night in this city, and at 6:55 in the morning left, with several other officials for Madison in their private car, from that point going to North McGregor, Iowa, where they will inspect the pontoon bridge there with a view to rebuilding it more substantially, as the old bridge is in very bad condition.

A COSTLY SHIPMENT OF BLOODED CATTLE

Three Carloads of Blooded Holstein-Friesian Cattle From New Glarus Yesterday.

Three carloads of high-class pedigreed Holstein-Friesian cattle raised in New Glarus by one of the breeders of that well known class, passed through Janesville yesterday enroute to Japan. They are full-blooded stock and will be placed in that far-off country for the purpose of further advancing the grade of cattle now raised in that country. The shipment, of course, was a very costly one, it requiring the use of three cars all the way to Seattle, and from there on the balance of the trip will be made by ocean liners. The cost of their transportation from New Glarus to Seattle is an item of about eight hundred dollars. The cattle were all insured and the value of them is considered by most people to be a small fortune.

BAPTIST MEN'S CLUB PLANS FIRST SUPPER

Meeting to Be Led by T. S. Nolan on Subject of Municipal Ownership of the Water Works.

At a meeting of the officials of the Men's club of the Baptist church last evening it was decided to hold the first meeting of this year on November fourteenth. Mr. T. S. Nolan will be the leader and the subject chosen was the question of municipal ownership of the water works in this city. Supper will be served by the helpful Circle as heretofore and the purchase of the four tickets will entitle one to membership.

This club has been organized for several years and the four meetings each season have been well attended. Questions of live interest have been taken up and the discussion is generally lead by someone who is an authority on the subject chosen. Membership in the club is open to anyone.

An effort will be made to make the meetings even more interesting than those of any previous year, if possible, and everything will be done which will add to the value of the club.

IN SECOND ADDRESS ON ENGLISH SCHOOL

Professor Allan B. West Again Talks to High School Students Regarding Life at Oxford.

Professor Allan B. West again addressed the students at the opening exercises at the high school this morning on the subject of "Student Life at Oxford." The talk was a continuation of the address given yesterday and treated, among other things, of the entrance examinations, the methods of study, and the sports which are enjoyed by the students.

Mr. West recounted many interesting facts concerning the famous English university, indicating a number of the peculiarities and explaining why they existed, and at the same time making comparisons with the American schools. He gave a very vivid description of the annual boat race which is enjoyed by the different colleges in the spring, and told of the peculiar manner in which it was conducted.

SYRIAN ROBBED OF SHAWL IN SALOON LAST NIGHT

Officer Dorn Succeeds in Finding Missing Article And Restores It to Angry Asiatic.

Someone with a genius for practical jokes, or worse yet, with the designs of a thief, stole a shawl out of the back of a Syrian peddler last evening while he was attempting to sell his wares in Ludlow's saloon. It was not long before he missed the article and he made vociferous demands that it be restored to him. Failing to find it he went out on the streets to look for a policeman. He soon found Patrolman Dorn who returned with him to the saloon and after a brief search the shawl was found hid behind the bar. This time the Syrian was told to move on.

HAVOC BY FLOOD IS NOT HALF RELATED

John E. Kennedy Who Passed Through Black River Falls Yesterday, States Conditions.

Are Most Distressing.

Not one-half of the suffering and privations caused by the flood at Black River Falls has been printed by the newspapers, according to John E. Kennedy who passed through the stricken city yesterday on his return home from a business trip into the northern part of the state. Even yesterday a $12,000 residence was washed into the torrent of water which goes through the city. Although there has been a large amount of supplies and money rushed to the aid of the destitute inhabitants, there is still a large shortage of what is necessary to provide for the hundreds of homeless people.

The amount donated by this city has been very small as yet, but there is yet time to render valuable assistance. This list of subscriptions is as follows:

SIXTEEN MEMBERS RECEIVED BY LODGE

Bower City Lodge of Knights and Ladies of Honor at Banquet After Initiatory Exercises.

The Bower City Lodge of the Knights and Ladies of Honor held their regular semi-monthly meeting last night in their lodge room, when sixteen new members were taken into the order. The initiatory ceremonies were in charge of Misses Green and Dempsey and Messrs. Green, Frushier and Williams. The initiation was a big success and great credit was given the committee for the way the work was put on. The secret work of the order was exemplified by Dr. McGuire, the Protector of the local council.

Following the meeting, a social program and banquet was enjoyed and the lodge was closed at an early hour this morning after the members had enjoyed a most pleasant time.

The program was as follows:
Piano solo, Miss Gertrude McGinley
Address, "Duty of the Lady Member in the Lodge," Miss Green
Vocal solo, Miss Zerbell
Address, "Duty of the Men Members of the Lodge," Mr. Green
Piano solo, Miss E. Miller
Address, "The Future Possibilities of Bower City Lodge," Mr. Frushier
Vocal solo, Miss Mae Dempsey
Address, "My Impressions of the Initiation," Mrs. Ward; Thomas Frushier

Address, "Fraternity," Dr. McGuire
The program was concluded by the entire company joining in singing "The Star Spangled Banner."

OBITUARY.

Hazel Garry.
Funeral services over the remains of the late Hazel Garry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Garry, were held at nine o'clock this morning at St. Patrick's church. Rev. Dean Holby officiated. The pall bearers were William and Edward Sheridan Joseph Boylen and Daniel Roberts.

Many friends and relatives attended and the floral tributes were very beautiful. Among those from out of the city who attended at the funeral were William Garry of Minneapolis, Katherine and Anna Garry of Beloit, and Mrs. Dee Quigley of Rockford, Ill.

James Lavin.
The remains of the late James Lavin (formerly of Footville) who died in Milwaukee yesterday following a prolonged illness were brought to this city this morning. They arrived on the 10:45 train, over the St. Paul road, and were taken to Mt. Olivet immediately afterward for interment.

Picks Second Crop of Beans: County Clerk Howard Lee picked nearly a basketful of string beans from the vines in his garden this morning. This was the second crop this year and the plants grew from self-sown seeds. This is a very rare occurrence although this year many gardeners have reported this thing possible.

REMARKABLE RESULTS IN CLEVELAND

Tona Vita a Medicine Which Does What They Say For It.

One sensational statement after another is being made in connection with "Tona Vita," the new tonic that is accomplishing such remarkable results in Cleveland. Graham Harris, 1725 E. 8th St., had this to say recently:

"This is the first medicine I have ever taken that really does what they say. I have been dead on my feet for four years. Since last October I have been hard for me to work at all; everything seemed to be wrong with me. I didn't eat well or sleep well, and I had no energy at all. I stood any length of time my back felt as though it was going to break, and I would have to sit down. I had a swollen skin and had no life in me. My stomach was in bad shape, and my heart would beat rapidly at the slightest exertion or excitement. I came to the store to try this new medicine, and one of the doctors told me I had nervous debility. I got the medicine and it's the best on earth; it helped me right away, and has made another man out of me. When I think how I felt when I came dragging down town that day, and how I feel now, I would like to find some poor fellow in the same shape I was and buy him a bottle of this 'Tona Vita' and say to him, 'this is worth more to you than all the money in Cleveland.'"

A similar preparation to "Tona Vita" has been a great success in Europe, but the tonic is just being introduced in the United States. Physicians are explaining the nature of the disease to the public in Cleveland. These physicians claim that a large percentage of the population, especially among city people, are afflicted with nervous debility. One of the physicians in this connection said: "The symptoms of nervous debility are unmistakable to those who know how prevalent this trouble is. A tired, dragging feeling of the body, a sluggish mind and dull memory, depression of spirits, nervousness, stomach trouble, weak back, cold feet, headache and bowel trouble are sure indications of nervous debility, and modern life produces it in untold thousands."

"Tona Vita" will positively remove this condition. It is going to astonish the people of this country, as it is actually worth its weight in gold to a man or woman afflicted with nervous debility.

Smith Drug Co. have secured the agency for "Tona Vita" in Janesville and the remarkable tonic is now on sale at their store.

Cats Some Feed: A horse hitched to a buggy, standing in front of one of the grocery stores on West Milwaukee street, had an excellent meal this afternoon when a florist's wagon drove up to the curb and stopped directly in front of the animal. The green leaves of the various plants were too great a temptation for the horse and when the florist came out of the store to drive away there was not much left of the plants but a bunch of roots.

THE MIDDLEMAN.

The mayor of Toledo recently engaged in the potato business, prompted by a desire to aid the consumer by putting him in close touch with the producer, and thus doing away with the services and saving the profits of the middleman.

He succeeded in breaking the market and the few potatoes sold saved a little money to the purchaser. He also succeeded in arousing public sentiment and today, in some of the eastern cities, vigorous efforts are being made to dispense with the services of men whose business it is to market products to the ultimate consumer.

In casting about for an excuse for extravagance, the high cost of living is urged as a defense, and the middleman is the popular scape goat. If he could be eliminated we could return to the good old-fashioned days of trade and barter, and everybody would be satisfied.

An old down east Yankee tells of how they used to do it, when he was a boy, and sighs for a return of the good old days. His mother sent him to the village store with an egg to trade for a darning needle. He made the trade all right and then hung around the store close by the elder barrel.

Presently the proprietor said, "Johnnie, help yourself to elder." He drew a glass and then said, hesitatingly, "Mr. Jones, elder is no good without an egg in it." "Well," was the reply, "Go and get an egg if you want one." And not long after Johnnie was trudging along home with a darning needle in his pocket and an egg under his belt, while the middleman stood in the door scratching his head in a vain effort to balance accounts.

The story is told of a man who went into a dinner for breakfast, a time ago, and paid seventy-five cents for two eggs and a slice of bacon. He felt a little annoyed and said to a friend: "Eggs in my town are 22 cents a dozen, and bacon 28 cents a pound. A dozen eggs and a pound of bacon would serve half a dozen breakfasts like that, and show a profit of $2.50."

The more he thought about it, the madder he got, and so his complaint went to the passenger department of the road, where he was informed that the company would be glad to dispense with the dining car service because it showed a loss of $100,000 a year.

It is popular to make odious comparisons about Florida oranges at a dollar a box, on the one hand, and the same fruit at the rate of $15.00 a box served at the city restaurant, or of stock on the hoof in Kansas and on the table in some eastern market, and the middleman is held accountable.

While it is doubtless true that there are some dishonest commission men, as well as some men in business who will bear watching, it is also true that this class of men are the rare exception, and not the rule. The average business man is honest, because he believes in honesty, and he soon discovers that integrity is necessary to permanent success.

As a matter of policy the middleman is needed just as much as the producer, and any effort to dispense with his services has always met with failure. The Toledo mayor marketed his potatoes from the court house steps in the public square. If he had been the only middleman doing business in the city that day, the place would have been crowded with crates and boxes, and the park would have resembled a stock yard.

Competition is always the people's safety valve, and the army of people who contribute to their comfort and happiness through acting as intelligent agents for the farm and factory, are a necessary part of life's machinery, deserving more appreciation than is always received.

CANADIAN TEN COMMANDS.

A correspondent furnishes the following code for Canada, as significant of the defeat of reciprocity:

ONE FOR ALL—ALL FOR ONE.

1. In all expenses keep in mind the interests of your own compatriots.
2. Never forget when you buy a foreign article that your own country is thus made poorer.
3. Your money should profit no one but Canadians.
4. Never profane Canadian factories by using foreign machinery.
5. Never allow foreign entables to be served at your table.
6. Write on Canadian paper, with a Canadian pen and Canadian ink, and use Canadian blotting paper.
7. Canadian flour, Canadian fruit, Canadian vegetables, Canadian meat, and Canadian beer and whisky alone can give your body true Canadian energy.
8. If you do not like Canadian malt coffee drink coffee from English colonies.
9. Use only Canadian clothes for your dress and Canadian hats for your head.
10. Let not foreign battery distract you from these precepts, and be firmly convinced, whatever others say, that Canadian products are the only ones worthy of citizens of the Canadian fatherland.

I sincerely hope that the present administration will not endanger the American export business any further.

"The present condition of uncertainty in business is intolerable and destructive of industrial prosperity. It is worse than idle to leave the question of whether great business enterprises are legal or not merely to judicial determination. Industrial corporations should by legislative enactment be given definite rules of conduct by which business conducted in accordance therewith shall be made safe and stable, while at the same time the interests of the public shall be fully safeguarded. We seek constructive legislation and not destructive litigation."

This paragraph from the platform of the "progressives," expresses a sane sentiment, which will be readily endorsed, and indicates that the two wings of the republican party are not so far apart as they seem to be on the surface.

Sixty-five lives have been sacrificed to the science of aviation, during the current year, and yet there is no lack of men who are willing to take the risk for money. As a means of safe transportation it will be some time before the overhead route will be popular.

Some man with a fertile brain suggests that inasmuch as California has granted the right of suffrage to the fair sex, that it might be possible to all the jury panel with women, in the McNamara case at Los Angeles. All classes of men seem to be objectionable.

When the city attorney gets through with the water works and the interurban company, the town will be well advertised. From present appearances we seem to be under commission rule without being consulted.

It is rumored that Attorney General Wickersham may be transferred to the supreme bench to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Judge Harlan. There are numerous and sundry people who are willing to see him go.

The employer's liability law exempts small employers whose force numbers four men or less. Wonder if the farmer-legislators had anything to do with the "frame-up?"

It has been suggested that it costs more to elect a United States senator in Wisconsin than to run a revolution in Mexico. The primary law is a great absorber.

Convention of Catholic Women Rochester, N. THE PURE MOMENT

DO YOU KNOW THIS MAN?

It's always just about to have a pain. He always knows it's just about to rain. With many grim forebodings he is cured. His auto tire is just about to burst. He always sees his country's early doom. His goal of life is nothing but the tomb. He's always just about to lose his job. He always sees the big trusts raising hob. He always sees a grave financial smash. And sits around just waiting for the crash. There is no good in anything at all. He hates the winter, summer, spring and fall. When others to gay picnic parties go, he sits at home and waits for it to snow. He's always looking for the worst of it. And thinks that every man's a hypocrite. And nothing in this world amounts to much. A hardfrozen, wrinkled, sour-faced pessimist. He'll die and never know what he has missed.

THINGS TO THINK ABOUT.

A dress coat can be quickly transformed into a Tuxedo by pinning the tails up inside.

Most of the great men of the world have had blue eyes, says a statistician. And some of them have had black and blue ones.

A Boston Chinaman has made $500,000 out of chop suey. Well, there ought to be a lot of money in chop suey, for there is a lot of everything else.

A gondolier is a large animal which inhabits the waters of Italy, notably Venice. It has a long neck sticking up at one end and a long tail sticking up at the other.

In Queen Elizabeth's time every guest at a dinner party brought his own spoon and took it home. Now they take spoons belonging to the hostess.

The souvenir teaspoon is one of the worst enemies of good teeth. It is very common to break off an incisor on Niagara Falls, the Sphinx of Egypt or the Chicago Shingle Temple. Every family should keep a scrap book. In it should be recorded the various family scrapes.

A POETIC CALLER.

It was only the other day, that a local woman, visiting in the northern part of the state, attended a neighborhood dance, and this is what she heard: "S'late yer pardners; let 'er go; balance all and go-swo; swing yer gal and run away; right and left and swing or cheat; on to the next gal and repeat; balance next and don't be shy; swing yer pard and swing 'er light; break the gals and swing 'er round; whack your feet until they sound; form a waltz; break away; swing and kiss and all get gay; alumm left and balance all; lift yer heels and let 'em fall; swing your opposite—swing again; all fine hands and off yer go."

ACCORDING TO UNCLE ABNER. Hod Spink of this village went to Chicago to take a position as heavy villain with a stock company, but when they tried him out they found he was too light. He only weighs 117 pounds.

Old man Stubbins has taken to his bed with a violent attack of misery in the spine of the back and will probably not be able to be around again until the harvest is over. It happens this way every year.

There are a whole lot of ways to get rich quick besides playing the horse races, but there are evidently a lot of people in this country who are never going to find it out.

Alma Perkins says if his wife has her skirt much tighter next season he will have to carry her around on his back.

one of the best things he does. My idea of extravagance is for a fellow who wears long flowing whiskers to buy a pocket watch. There is only one harder job than being elected president, and that is being president. The more we see of the world the more firmly convinced we are that a lot of good pumpkin huskers was spoiled to make music teachers. Elmer Jones has got a vacuum cleaner, a fireless cooker and an electric toaster, and he says he can't see much use now in gettin' a wife. It is all right for a wife to use her husband's bald head for a mirror, but there is no class to her when she safety razor to slice bacon with. A fellow that hasn't got an estimate on it, but a fellow that has got one, always is, morning, noon and night. There is about as much use trying to tell a traveling man or a barber a story that he hasn't heard before as there is in tryin' to learn the secret of the Sphinx of Egypt.

In Memory of Senator George Jackson, Mrs. Oct. 20.—"George Day" was observed for the first time by the public schools throughout Mississippi today, when special exercises were held by the pupils in honor of the memory of the late Gen. Jas. Z. George, who was for many years one of the foremost figures in public life in this state. Following distinguished services in the civil war, in which he was several times wounded and captured, General George served the state of Mississippi as chief justice and as United States senator, filling the last-named office until his death in 1887. To the public at large he is best remembered as the dominating figure in the constitutional convention of 1890 that devised a legal method of eliminating the negro from politics and maintaining white supremacy in Mississippi.

REQUESTED TO LOOK FOR MISSING AUTO

Local Police Asked to Keep Watch for Halliday Roadster Stolen in Chicago.

The local police department is in receipt of a letter from the Illinois detective agency requesting them to keep watch for an automobile stolen in Chicago, October 3, at 7 p. m. Fifty dollars reward is offered for the recovery of the car and apprehension of the thief. The machine is described as a Halliday roadster, 1911 model, of 40 horsepower. It bore an Illinois license number 232, factory number 3539, on a small plate in the rear. The name "Huttenberg" appears in large raised letters on the motor. The machine is a Bosch and the coil of the Pfaffmuhl manufacture. The body is two passenger torpedo with an auxiliary seat fitted on the tool box. The car was equipped with an offset windshield and top. The color of the body is black and the wheels blue black. The tires are 35x3 1/2 inches.

NASH

Somerset, Ky., Oct. 20.—Citizens of a half a dozen counties of southern Kentucky gathered today at the town of Burnside, this county, and joined in a celebration in honor of the completion and opening of Lock No. 21 on the Cumberland River. The construction of the lock is the most notable step yet taken for the improvement of the upper Cumberland and its completion will give navigable water the year round from Nashville as far up the river as Burnside.

MILTON WAS SETTLED AT VERY EARLY DATE

ROCK COUNTY VILLAGE WILL CELEBRATE SEVENTY-FIFTH ANNIVERSARY NEXT MARCH.

IS PROSPEROUS PLACE

Improvements Made Within Past Few Years Indicative of Wealth—Milton College Strong Institution.

(By a Staff Correspondent.) Milton, Wisconsin, October 20.—Ranking in age as one of the oldest towns in this section of the state, the village of Milton will on the fourth of next March pass its seventy-fifth birthday. Founded before the county of Rock was even platted and when the city of Janesville was composed of but one house and that a log cabin, it is rich in historical association with that period of the state's history, when settlers were few and towns were but a tavern and postoffice.

In the spring of 1836 Joseph Goodrich made the long overland pilgrimage from Alleghany county, New York, and took as a settler's claim from the government the tract of land on which the village is now located. A year later he went back to his eastern home and returning brought with him his wife and family and the home they built and which they later turned into a store and postoffice was the beginning of Milton and that house, at present owned by Ezra Goodrich, only son of the founder, still stands in the original place in which it was erected. In early days, nor at the present time had Milton any of the natural advantages that go to make the larger cities. Surrounded by timber land and later as these were cleared by a farming community it has grown to meet the needs of the community in which it is a center.

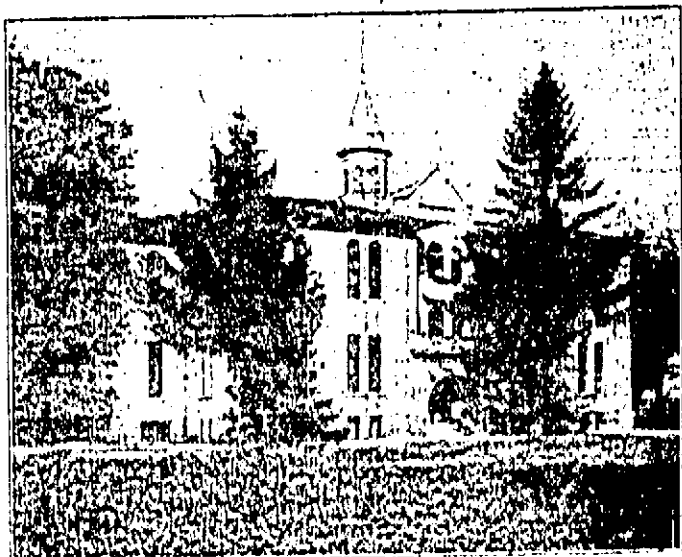

Many Advantages. Soon after its birth the need of an educational institution was seen and through the good will of its founders and other leading citizens a seminary and later a college was erected.

the edge of town. Numerous social organizations have had their inception during the past year. Prominent among these is the Milton Poultry association, which was incorporated with a membership of forty during the past summer and who are planning their first exhibit early in the next year. The business houses as a whole report the past year to have been a splendid one in the way of business. The farmers of the vicinity have been fortunate in crops. Despite the drought of the summer, the yields have been good and the rural population is, as a whole, prosperous.

Sugar boots which for several years have been a prominent industry has been practically abandoned and it has been stated by several of the residents that not a single car will be loaded from there this fall.

No description of the village of Milton would be complete without mention of the park around which the town is built. Four blocks long and one wide, a prettier park is not to be found in the state of Wisconsin. Shaded and beautifully lawned it is during the warmer months the magnet that draws hundreds of people to the village.

Milton has been incorporated as a

HIGH SCHOOL.

Some idea of the wealth of the community can be gained by a brief statement of the affairs of the only bank of the village, The State Bank of Milton.

This institution has resources that total nearly a quarter of a million dollars, composed of a capital of fifteen thousand dollars, a surplus of a similar figure, deposits of eighty thousand and subject to check and deposit in the savings department of one hundred and thirty thousand dollars.

The latter figure is remarkable and is explained by one of the officers of the bank by the fact that the city is filled with men who have made their for-the past five years and its business is controlled and executed by a board of five trustees of whom P. M. Well is president. Its monies are expended under their direction for such improvements as are necessary and in this respect it stands well with cities of its size.

Plans for the betterment of the village in the future are many. An electric light plant is soon to be built. A water system is clamoring at the door for admittance.

Its growth in the future will in all probability be as it has in the past, slow but sure. Not a building now ex-

COLLEGE BUILDINGS.

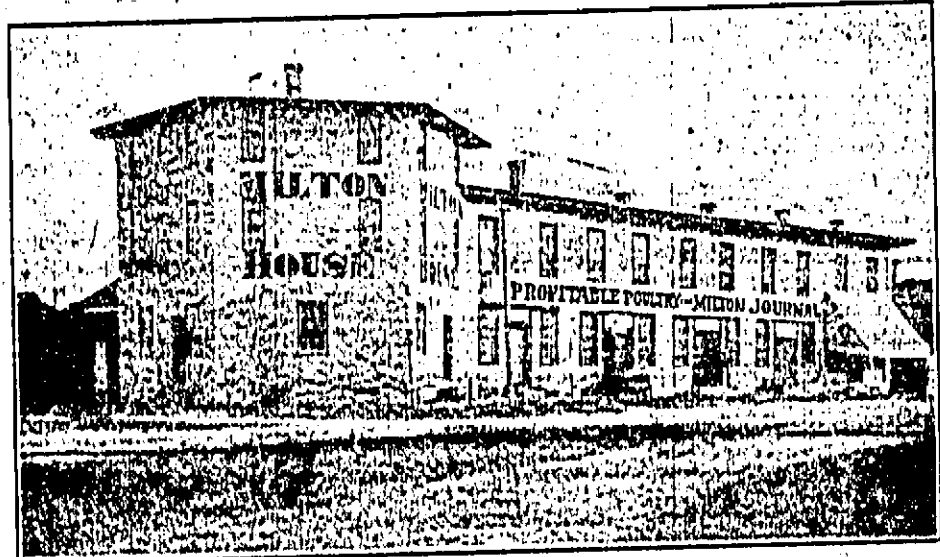

The coming of a line of railroad brought shipping facilities and diverted to it the trade that formerly had gone to Milwaukee. Commerce and schools brought more people to the town and after the fertility of the land was demonstrated the neighboring country was rapidly settled and thus from its early beginning it has grown to its present population of

ADJOURNED MEETING HELD LAST EVENING

Edgerton Council Transacted Business of Minor Importance—Other Edgerton News.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Edgerton, Oct. 20.—At the adjourned meeting of the common council, held last evening, orders were issued to the C. M. & St. P. railway to build a sidewalk alongside their property on East Fulton street. This is the walk along Croft's hill and to place the walk will necessitate erecting a cement wall some ten feet in height. This is another matter that has hung fire in the council meetings for several years.

The company was also ordered to build a walk across their tracks west of the city.

Nels E. Nelson's walk alongside his second ward property was also condemned and a new one ordered built. Marshal Dunn served the papers in both cases this morning.

Tendered Linen Shower.

Miss Mattie Stricker was tendered a linen shower last evening in Academy hall, Mrs. H. C. Schmalz acting as hostess. The hall was tastefully decorated for the occasion with autumn leaves and other fancy decorations, presenting a fine appearance. About fifty young lady friends were present and enjoyed the occasion immensely.

The evening was spent in music and dancing and at the proper hour delicious refreshments were served. Miss Stricker is soon to become the bride of Louis Schachtelholder.

Edgerton Locals.

Mrs. John Snow of Lockport, N. Y., arrived here yesterday on an extended visit with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wyman.

Mrs. Otto Stewart of the Lake, Wis., is here on a week's visit with her brother, W. A. Klumder, and family. Mrs. Stewart formerly resided in this city and this is her first visit here in ten years.

SEVERAL NEW ITEMS IN MARKETS TODAY

N. Y. Snows. Twenty Ounce Pippins and Palmyra Malaga Imported Today—Potatoes Have Dropped Again.

Honolulu who keep close watch of the local markets are realizing that the summer and fall fruits and vegetables which have been raised around here are almost gone and are getting ready to make their final appeal for this year. The gradual increase of products imported from Eastern farms is the natural result of the diminishing of the home grown articles and its rapidly will probably grow more and more from now on.

Snow apples from New York were received within the last few days for the first time and more are on the way. Also barrels of the twenty ounce Pippins may now be had.

White Malaga grapes made their first appearance today and are of excellent quality. These grapes come from Palmyra, Spain, in small boxes packed in cork and arrived in the finest condition despite the fact that they have traveled several thousand miles since they were picked. This variety brings twenty cents a pound in comparison with ten cents which is charged for the ordinary Malaga.

Potatoes have gone down again much to the joy of the housekeepers who read about the short crop and high prices which were prophesied earlier in the year. Any amount of the new potatoes may be had at from 45 to 65 cents a bushel. Prices on the local market for today summarize as follows:

Fresh Vegetables.

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

SUCCESSFUL SUCCESS.
"Please give the true meaning of 'success,'" says a correspondent.

It all depends.
Men differ in their definitions as to what success is. One may regard success as the getting of an education, another the building of a home, another the election to an office, and so on.

In its highest meaning, however, success does not consist in getting or owning anything. It is giving rather than getting. Success is in service. The objective of it must be outside of self.

Permit me to say that—
Ignoble success is only successful failure.

Noble failure may be and often is success.

Noble success is successful success.
I know a physician who does more work down in the slums' bottoms for nothing than he does out on the rich avenue for pay. The night is never too dark or hot or cold for him to respond to a call for help, and he never considers whether or not he will be paid.

He is successfully successful.
I know a lawyer who seems to take a bribe in an unjust cause, who counsels arbitration rather than litigation and who is the swift defender of the downtrodden and the poor.

He is nobly successful.
I know an editor who twice resigned a good salary when asked to defend a greedy corporation against the interests of the people.

He won high success.

I know a woman who gave up ease and society and gives her time and money in service to those who need.

Is she not successful?

I know a woman who has refused several offers of marriage and willingly has become an "old maid" that she may stay at home and take care of an invalid father.

Is she a failure?

Successful are these souls and happy, successful in the best and truest sense.

Oh, I know the world has a different standard!

It speaks of the successful as those who pile up money they do not need, those who achieve power and dominance, those who scorn to stoop that they may conquer.

But let me whisper:

Deep down in his heart the world knows better.

Could Hurry.

"Twenty-four hours to get out of town," announced the justice of the peace.

"I can get out of this borough in half a minute," said the motorcyclist, who had been arrested for speeding.

And he started his engine.—Buffalo Express.

Extremism.

"Some men," said Uncle Eben, "is so skayot of 'bilda' dere light under a bushel dat dey goes to de opposite extreme an' burns de candle at both ends."—Washington Star.

The One Great Institution.
"Would you say the presidency or the judiciary is the noblest institution in the land?" asked the interrogative Person. "Without intending to cast a slur on either the presidency or the judiciary," said the Opinionated Person, "I should say that pay day holds that enviable eminence."—Buffalo Express.

One Disadvantage.
Speaking of the announcement by scientists that people may become energetic by eating raisins, the Chicago Record-Herald puts in the comment that the trouble is that most of the energy produced by eating raisins has to be expended in removing the seeds.

Beyond His Comprehension.
"There is something mysterious about the word 'psychic,'" said the student of occult things. "Yes," replied the plain person; "and the most mysterious thing about it to me is the way they spell it."—Stray Stories.

Woman Jurors.
The invasion of the jury box by women has begun in earnest in the state of Washington, and will be watched by the rest of the country with great interest. Our ancestors, in their blindness, fancied that the revelations of the law courts were sometimes unfit for the ears of the gentler sex. But the women of Washington have repudiated the gentler-sex idea, and countless women of other states are trying to do likewise. Women have for years defied the old conventions, and the proprietors, too, and thronged courtrooms in which evidence really unfit for any ears had to be endured by judges, lawyers and jurors, and they have seemed to enjoy it. That the gift of logic was withheld from woman has been frequently asserted, though never proved, but the logic of male jurors in the state of Washington has not been noticeably strong. There is no privilege the men would more willingly resign to the women than jury duty.—New York Times.

Early Rising.
It is a foregone conclusion that society during the coming season will find itself up and doing at a much earlier hour than has been the case for many a long year. Early rising has not been much practiced of recent times, but when the English court leads others follow. The king's morning center in the row is evidently to be made fashionable again, and royal breakfasts may issue invitations to that meal and thus establish, or rather, revive, another form of entertainment.—London Mail.

Gives Money to Fight White Plague.
The largest contribution by one person to the fund for the prevention and relief of consumption in this country was made by a woman. Mrs. Grace Leattle, said to be the richest woman in Missouri, has given $200,000 to the St. Louis society that devotes its energies to the prevention and cure of the white plague.

Russian Food Eaters.
By no means are all the food fakers in the United States. A story comes from Russia of the discovery of a method made use of by fruit dealers to transform ordinary oranges into blood oranges. A St. Petersburg mother had bought a dozen blood oranges of a fruit dealer. One of these she gave to her daughter. As the child was eating it she screamed out in pain and began to spit blood. A physician found that the pain and bleeding were caused by a fragment of a needle that had caught in the child's throat. Further investigation brought out the fact that this piece of a needle was the point of a hypodermic syringe used by the fruit vendor to inject aniline red and saccharine into the fruit to make his common orange the higher priced red orange.

Tax on Bears in Japan.
Bears are liable to taxation in some Japanese villages. The origin of this curious custom is unknown.

Angels of Death.
The poison in the toadstools is called alkaloids and is sometimes like morphine in opium or strychnine in dogbush, only it does not get busy and show its deadly hand for hours. The poor chap who has eaten them feels fine until minutes later in its work, when it irritates the stomach and then it paralyzes the nervous system and then it kills a person to a death's certainty—no cure. It is an mighty powerful, too. Any of the amanita (Angels of Death) will kill, if a tiny piece is eaten. Some toadstools act exactly like cholera. It was this sort of poison that killed the Czar Alexie. Amanita seems to have a banking for blue blood in royal purple clothes. Many of the Cæsars and their kin, friends and lovers kicked the bucket bitten by a little piece of the "Angel of Death." Occasionally the secret poisoners got the deadly dose.

HEART AND HOME TALKS

BY BARBARA BOYD

Vacation's Aftermath.

WE are all back home, and our summer vacation is a thing of the past. Most of us are so absorbed in our work that we scarcely speak of our holiday any more. At any rate, beyond the pleasure or the health gleaned from it, few of us pause to see if it has anything more to give us.

One housekeeper, however, discovered something rather valuable on her vacation. She was camping. And she has found out the worth of simple living. In camp, frills are laid aside. And she has discovered that these frills which she had thought quite essential are non-essential. She found out that health did not suffer, but if anything improved, with simple meals. She learned that the children were quite as well off in response as in frilly dresses. And she has brought into the city life some of the simplicity of camp life; and the family are happier and healthier for it. A result has come into their hurried, feverish life that is giving the home a delightful atmosphere of rest and charm.

A business girl looked forward to her vacation as an escape from all the botherations and perplexities of her position. But she found out who was just as restless and discontented and dissatisfied on her vacation as when at work. When she came back, and it seemed to her as if she had not been away, it suddenly dawned upon her that the fault was with herself. Even on a vacation, she could not escape from herself, and in herself, and not in her work, lay the real root of the seeming irritations and burdens of her business. And so she summoned the spirit that could put all the little vexatious irritations under her feet, and is going on her way serene and strong.

One woman discovered upon her return that she hadn't done much but gossip upon hotel porches. Some women haven't a mind above gossip. But this woman has, and she wondered how she could have let the long, beautiful summer days slip by with nothing more to show for them. But the experience did show her the utter uselessness of such conduct, the sheer worthlessness and waste of it, and gossiping will pierce little of her time this winter. She is turning to something more worth while.

And so this taking stock after vacation is going on with some of us. And it is not a bad idea. One should not in a mercenary spirit want one's vacation to return him profit. One should not make a business of vacation. But it should return him good in some other form. And if we will sit down and think our holiday over quietly, it may yield more than pleasure or health or rest which are its usual fruits. It may give that of which character is made, and so be a source of happiness for all the years to come.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

"I KNOW a man who was insanely in love with a beautiful and superior woman. He simply worshipped her on his knees. Now they are married and he scarcely treats her decently. And yet I'm sure that if he hadn't married her, he'd have gone on worshipping her forever. Isn't that enough to make a woman cynical about marriage?"

So one of my correspondents questions. No, that's not enough to make a woman cynical about marriage—at least, not this woman.

Superior beings are not always the easiest people in the world to live with. I'd really like to know the husband's side of this case.

Perhaps he doesn't treat her unkindly at all. I have a feeling, somehow, that the whole trouble is that he has gotten off his knees and she feels aggrieved at that change of attitude.

I think that is one of the commonest causes of marital discord in the first year of married life. The lover, having become the husband, gets off his knees, and the sweetheart, having become the wife, resents his doing so.

And what would you have? And a man with the livelihood to earn for himself and another remain perpetually on his knees? Of course he can't. He's got to stand up on his two feet and hustle.

And when he does that, he's doing it for her, as well as for himself. And yet, lives there a woman that doesn't feel at least, a little bit aggrieved, when she sees her husband brush the dust off his trousers—as it were—and rise erect to kneel no more?

The woman with common sense some calls that common sense to her rescue and becomes resigned to the inevitable state of affairs.

But the dreamer, the idealist—to which class this "beautiful and superior woman" doubtless belongs—takes the change much harder. She not only feels, but acts much aggrieved. She puts on an injured air which probably vastly mystifies her husband. She often says, "You never used to do so-and-so."

Whereupon the husband, who knows that he is doing what is logical and right, who loves his wife as much as, if not more, than his sweetheart, and who is totally incapable of understanding the futility of her attitude, naturally feels indignantly, and, after patiently enduring the unpleasant atmosphere which she creates, finally rebels and gives her real reason to feel aggrieved.

And there you are with a matrimonial rift wide and ready, to be wider at the slightest provocation. And all with no logical cause at all.

The whole thing reminds me of the silly saying, "A man never runs for a car after he gets it," which I have often heard people quote in regard to marriage with most cynical emphasis.

Of course, a man never runs for a car after he gets it. But would you want him to? What would you think of him if he did?

Listen, brides and bride-to-be. When a man, in the change from lover to husband, does not lose his willingness to work for you, his respect, his camaraderie, and his tenderness towards you, you may be pretty sure that, no matter what minor changes in his manner there are, you have no reason to feel aggrieved.

Don't act abused because he has risen from his knees. Be glad that it is a kind, strong man who stands erect on his two feet before you, ready to take your hand in his and walk with you and guide you and make a pathway for you to the Journey's End.

Thought for Today

BY ROBERT M. LIPOLLETTE

A WISE PLAN.

THE national bureau of education in a bulletin on American school houses says:

"The rapid growth of modern cities suggests that in the near future radical changes must be made in the selection of school locations. The increasing values assigned to land near congested centers will of necessity limit the school grounds to the smallest possible space and tend to enforce the construction of taller buildings. With such restrictions in the size of school lots the danger of fire will be greater, while noise, dust and dirt will, in all probability, increase proportionately."

The author suggests that it would be an enormous gain hygienically and for the construction of taller buildings. With such restrictions in the size of school lots the danger of fire will be greater, while noise, dust and dirt will, in all probability, increase proportionately."

The author suggests that it would be an enormous gain hygienically and for the construction of taller buildings. With such restrictions in the size of school lots the danger of fire will be greater, while noise, dust and dirt will, in all probability, increase proportionately."

Does not the idea grip you? And why not apply it further? Looking out of the windows of a train as it leaves a great city with its rows of ugly houses, high apartment buildings, back views of slums and tenements and visions of little children growing up without air and light and earth, essential to health and happiness and development; how amazing to suddenly emerge into the open country with limitless space for happy homes that would be flooded with air and sunshine, and land so cheap every one might have a garden. How needless, how like a bad dream seems the dreadful congestion of the city, like dying of thirst with sparkling water near by, like a famine with abundance of food within reach.

Housing and transportation may be hard economic problems to solve, but city congestion is a breeding place of disease and crime. Can a question of street car service, sanitary schooling, intelligent housing compare in difficulty with caring for sickness, pauperism, vagrancy, crime resulting from city crowding? Ultimately the State has to pay, why not grapple with the cause instead of the consequence.

COOKING HINTS.

A GOOD deal of the trouble of this world arises from the fact that some folks like to have gardens, while others prefer to keep house.

Good Substitute For Mayonnaise and Oil Dressings For Salads.

(By Alice E. Whitaker.)

Some of the best cooks, or those who may be classed as chefs, so great is their skill, do not acknowledge a place for the cooked dressing in the making of salads. Their discrimination if rigidly carried out would take salads almost entirely from the diet of many a person who has a natural distaste for olive oil, or those unaccustomed to the taste in early life and who fall back to like it later. These possibilities of the palate furnish a most excellent reason why a cooked dressing should not be overlooked because a salad is an important feature of at least one meal a day.

The amateur or careless cook is liable to have her cooked dressing curdle just as she is likely to have a mayonnaise separate. The secret of success is to have the liquids scalding hot when used and for mayonnaise the ingredients should be well chilled. If a little thickening is added it is better to cook it alone for several minutes with the milk and finish with eggs which must be barely thickened in a smooth boiled custard. If the hot vinegar is added a few drops at a time the danger from curdling is removed. These apparently small points make all the difference between good and poor cooking. By disregarding this method of putting together one may have what old fashioned cooks call "poor luck" and which is merely another name for ignorance or carelessness.

Many recipes for cooked dressing direct the use of whole eggs but the smooth yellow dressing of just the right consistency, and which suggests a mayonnaise, is made of yolks alone. The whites of the eggs can be used in so many ways that it is an extravagant waste to cook them in the dressing. If the whole egg is used do not separate for heating as the beaten white added last is likely to give a curdled appearance. For fish a greater proportion of vinegar may be used in a dressing than for vegetables, while the cooked dressing for vegetable salads, especially a potato salad, is best with a little sugar added. A cooked dressing will keep a week in the refrigerator.

For an inexpensive cooked dressing try the following rule making all the measurements level. Use one-half teaspoon each of mustard and salt, a few grains of cayenne, two tablespoons of flour and one of sugar, the yolk of one egg, a three-quarters cup of hot milk, two tablespoons of melted butter, and one-quarter cup of hot vinegar. Mix the dry ingredients and stir into the milk, cook ten minutes in a double boiler, add the beaten yolk of one egg, seasonings and when thick the hot vinegar a few drops at a time. Strain and cool.

For a richer dressing use one-half tablespoon of salt, one-half teaspoon of mustard, one and one-half tablespoons of sugar, a few grains of cayenne, one-half tablespoon of flour all measured level, the yolks of two eggs, one and one-half tablespoons of melted butter, three-quarters cup of hot milk and one-quarter cup of hot vinegar. Stir the dry ingredients into the hot milk, cook ten minutes in a double boiler, add the butter, then the beaten egg yolks of the eggs and when thick the hot vinegar a little at a time. Strain and cool.

For a dressing without thickening, use cream instead of milk. Measure level one-half tablespoon of salt and the same of sugar. Take also the yolks of three eggs, two and one-half tablespoons of melted butter, three-quarters cup of hot cream and one-quarter cup of hot vinegar. Add seasonings to the beaten egg yolks, then add the hot cream and when thick drop the vinegar in slowly; strain before using.

MEETING OF MOOSE HELD LAST EVENING

Local Lodge Has Social Time in Addition to Business Session—Out for Increased Membership.

In addition to the regular business session held at their club rooms last evening the Janesville lodge of Moose enjoyed a social good time. The ladies were given the privilege of using the club rooms during the afternoon and many authorized them to play cards and billiards.

Having been given for a limited time the right to take in new members at a lower entrance fee, the lodge will inaugurate an active campaign for increasing its membership. At the meeting last night it was announced that a special dispensation had been issued by the supreme dictator at Indianapolis, permitting the local lodge to take in new members for sixty days for a $5 membership fee.

The present membership of the lodge is nearly three hundred but the officers feel that with their commodious quarters they are well prepared to accommodate many more. The lodge rooms are large enough to banquet all the members at one time.

Within a few days a team from the local lodge will go to Whitewater to organize and give degrees work to a class of twenty-five. The Moose order is enjoying a very rapid growth. Ex-President Roosevelt recently took out a life membership.

What Is Meant by a Lyric Voice?

The term "lyric" is much used in literature, and is applied to poetry which calls for response of sympathy and tenderness. It frequently recites the tender feelings of an individual, in former times troubadours sang their personally-arranged poems to an accompaniment on the lute. The poem which they sang was termed a lyric. That gentle instrument would not furnish sufficient accompaniment for anything more than light emotion. The kind of poem in which light emotion could be expressed came to be called lyric. We call words from literature and apply them to music. The voice which best lends itself to the lyric poem with its characteristic sentiment is a lyric voice. This term is used in contradistinction to the dramatic voice. It is more commonly applied to tenors, although sometimes used in speaking of sopranos. In common use it means a light, high, flexible tenor voice. It is one of sweetness and beauty.

Fight the Hobbie Skirt.

A crusade against hobbie skirts has been begun in Milan, under the auspices of the cardinal archbishop. A league among fathers of families has been formed there with the object of combating hobbie skirts and several undertakes to follow such fashions. It is probable that a propaganda will be initiated throughout Italy.

Old Italian Test.

An old Italian test is to put a silver coin in the boiling pot of mushrooms, and if the silver turns black it means poison. There is no safe rule to tell the harmless fungi. Some of the deadliest are of common growth. Another very curious thing is that wholesome mushrooms are liable to absorb poisons from the place where they grow—such poisons as peris green, manure poison, or rotting meat poison. Perhaps there has been no greater piece of exaggeration worked on the public than long how shots on the world's riches in mushrooms. Fungi are not easily digested—this is due to their cellulose and hardening in cooking. On this account the pain which they so often cause is often mistaken for poison, and the doctor is called upon to relieve a mere mushroom indigestion.

Live in the Present.

It is common to overlook what is here, by keeping the eye fixed on something remote; in the same manner, present opportunities are neglected, and attainable good slighted by minds busied in extensive ranges, and intent upon future advantages.

SENATOR CHAS. P. FRYE OF MAINE

SUCCEEDS LATE SENATOR FRYE OF MAINE

Augusta, Me.—The appointment of Chas. P. Frye of Rockland to be United States senator to complete the unexpired term of the late Senator William P. Frye, has been announced by Governor Frederick W. Plaisted.

Several prominent democrats for the position, including former Sheriff William M. Pemmell, James C. Hamlen and Edward H. Winslow, all of Cumberland County, Mr. Gardner at present is state assessor, having been appointed to that office by Governor Plaisted last for a term of six years in April last. Mr. Gardner's term as senator will expire on March 4, 1915.

Candidates for the following full term will be nominated at the primaries next June.

Chas. P. Frye was one of the strongest opponents of United States Senator Charles P. Johnson of Waterville, in the senatorial elections last winter, being largely supported by the agriculturalists of Maine. Mr. Gardner having been an influential member of the State Grange, of which he is master at the present time. He also ran against Governor Bart Fernald in the state campaign of 1908 and polled a large vote, even though defeated, the largest Democratic vote in the history of the state in fact, up to that year, when Governor Plaisted went into office. Gardner was Plaisted's opponent in the State Democratic Convention of 1910 which nominated the present governor.

UNCLE WALT The Poet Philosopher

Copyright, 1909, by George Matthew Adams

BY WALT MASON

This truth is sound as virgin ore, so salt it down as such: The man who talks forevermore is bound to talk too much. The silent man has many friends, who think him smooth as grease, and if in season he unbinds, and starts to speak a piece, they listen to his every word, as though he were a sage, and say: "He is a fool-on-his-head, the wonder of this age!" The talker has no friends at all; folks hate to see him come; they say to him: "Go hire a bull—address the deaf and dumb!" I know a hundred idle men who once were drawing pay; they flattered their jaws and then they flattered their jobs away. You know some dunes, in other days, who talked their husbands blind, until they sought more pleasant ways, and jumped the beauty grind. I know a churchyard where the stones that dot the window-pane are piled above the crumbling bones of fellows, talked to death. If all the time we waste in talk were used in cutting ice, no homeless men the streets would walk—all men would have the price!

Soda crackers are extremely sensitive to moisture.

Before the advent of Uneeda Biscuit the only persons who ever tasted fresh, crisp soda crackers were the people in the bakeries.

Imagine their trip from bakery to your table; exposed to air and moisture—kept in grocers' boxes and finally in a paper bag on the shelf in your pantry. Could they be the same as they were the day they were baked?

Now that we have Uneeda Biscuit—we have perfectly baked soda

THE THEATERS

PENETRATING LINES FROM

"THE GAMBLERS."
The following pungent epigrams from Charles Klein's highly successful new American play, soon to be seen here, may explain, in a measure, why this play established a record run among dramatic offerings in New York City by attracting capacity audiences to Maxine Elliott's Theatre for over two hundred consecutive performances.

The woman who loves a man is not afraid of him.

A reformer doesn't hesitate to corrupt a man to prove that corruption exists.

The instinct for mercy is stronger than the mere desire to do right.

MADAME ZEISLER.

Omaha Excelsior, Jan. 9, 1909.—It is difficult to find activities to do critical justice on its more technical side to Zeisler's wonderful work in concert. But aside from that, a musician and a music lover will ever be drawn to and will have to look up to the admirable, purely musical manner, in which this artist combines highest intellect with dazzling skill in the interpretation of a most comprehensive and exacting program of pianoforte music. R. L. Brooklyn Times, Jan. 29, 1909.—Her playing is a marvel of executive skill, comprehending with rare artistic apprehension the various significance of exquisite delicacy.

THE BOY WONDER.

A boy wonder may still be found, here and there, but I am not bringing a charge to that effect against any boy of my acquaintance. There have been such in the past, there will be in the future, and we have heard of a few, now living, though it is not likely that the charge could be sustained, in every instance.

We can never forget Watt, whose genius showed itself, when he watched the steam lift the lid of his mother's tea kettle; nor John Stuart Mill, who was thinking through philosophical problems, and in technical language, long before he reached his teens. Pope said: "I lived in numbers, for the numbers came," even though some now think he never did anything but flap, except limp. The late John Fisk was a good Greek and Latin and philosophical scholar, before the average boy of that age had learned his grammar. Students of music can never forget how the boy, Handel, stole into the chapel in the dark and played the organ (all they were attracted from all over the estate of the duke of Saxe-Weissenfels and all thought it must be an angel and the duke pronounced him a genius; nor forget how Wolfgang Mozart was playing tunes at four, and did not have an equal on the harpsichord at twelve. Josef Hoffman was the wonderful boy pianist a few years ago and now has made good as a man.

In the line of music, early genius has been brilliant, but almost as much so, in literature. Pope wrote his "Ode to Silence" at 11, and "Ode to Solitude" at 12. At 12 Macaulay won fame, by his first volume. Cowley wrote "Pyrrhus and Thibault" at 12. At 16 Tasso wrote "Rinaldo." Mase printed a volume of poems and so did Chatterton. Shelley wrote "Queen Mab" and Disraeli "Vivian Gray" at 18. Dickens was made famous by his "Sketches" and Byron by his "English Bards and Scotch Reviewers" at 21. And there have been "Boy Orators" and "Boy Preachers" and "Boy Heroes" and "Boy Men." No one denies that there have been and still will be boy geniuses. Little William James Hilds has dazzled the wise men of the east with his conversations and writings and addresses on philosophical and mathematical subjects, and he will soon know all that Harvard can teach him, while Nicholas Wiener is treating Cornell to the same sort of a sensation. Alexander Hamilton comes in that class. In a few months after arriving in New York from his native West Indies, to attend King's college, he had studied out the question of the right of our country to independence, and, in a patriotic meeting, in the open field, came forward and electrified the audience with a great speech, and he was only 17. The late President Harper of the University of Chicago was such a wonder as a grown man that we forget his remarkable boyhood.

Not every boy, considered a genius by his admiring relatives, is one. He may be precocious, good and proper, but not a genius. But suppose there is a real boy genius at large in your community, what then? It brings up the old question: "Why should the spirit of mortal be proud?" His spirit or that of his kindred? Who knows but it may be only a case of infantile or juvenile genius which will disappear as the years go? Neither he nor his friends should ever forget that, try as he may, he may be distanced by some whose powers do not develop as fast as his. There are men-wonders whose boyhood was not unusual. Wagner and Bach and Goldsmith and Cowper and Franklin and Darwin and Deane and De Morgan belong to the latter class.

And there are some alarming possibilities before him. Genius is not insanity, as some of the wranglers have claimed; nor is it abnormal, save that it is unusual, nor what is called a "spurt." One may be what we often call a "universal genius," like Goethe, or Michael Angelo, or Gladstone, or Shakespeare. And yet he is apt to be one-sided and have some serious defects, which will prove his undoing, as a defect in will or judgment or sympathy or in power of concentration, and the latter was the defect of Coleridge. He may be repressed and neglected. He may be led to think that he does not need training nor discipline, for genius is never independent of such things and it takes hard work to mature and bring it to the fulfillment of its bright promise. The delicate nerve tissue may be burnt out before he reaches the more arduous work of his life and he is left in the condition of the man whose legs were set alight and he explained his misfortune: "I rode up in a balloon one time and walked back."

If, on careful examination, the boy is proven to be a genius, keep it to yourself and never allow him to suspect it. If he should find it out, tell him of the fall of the genius and anger over its harrowing details (all he is almost scared out of his wits; then put him at hard work as if his life depended on it. Make him play with the other boys, so that they can keep the conceit out of him. Be his master and his adviser and keep heavy responsibilities from him till he gets beyond the most dangerous point. You may save him, after all.

CASCARETS CURE A BILIOUS HEADACHE

Gently but thoroughly cleanse your Liver, Stomach and Bowels and you feel great by morning.

You're bilious, you have a throbbing sensation in your head, a bad taste in your mouth, your eyes burn, your skin is yellow, with dark rings under your eyes; your lips are parched. No wonder you feel ugly, mean and ill tempered. Your system is full of bile not properly passed off, and what you need is a cleaning up inside. Don't continue being a bilious nuisance to yourself and those who love you, and don't resort to harsh physics that irritate and injure. Remember that every disorder of the stomach, liver and intestines can be quickly cured by morning with gentle, thorough Cascarets—they work while you sleep. A 10-cent box from your druggist will keep you and the entire family feeling good for months. Children love to take Cascarets, because they taste good and never gripe or sicken.

Harm in Extremes.

Too much noise deafens us; too much light blinds us; too great a distance or too much of proximity equally prevents us from being able to see; too long and too short a discourse obscures our knowledge of a subject; too much of truth stuns us.—Pascal.

Gazette Travel Bureau

NEW CONVENIENCE ESTABLISHED FOR THE FREE USE OF THE PUBLIC

For some time past preparations have been in progress for the establishment of a Travel Bureau at the Gazette Office.

The object of the Bureau is to furnish gratuitous information regarding travel, routes, etc., as fully as possible; the service will be entirely impartial and advice will be offered as to the most convenient route to any given point.

Practically all of the various lines of railroads and transportation companies, including steamship and boat lines, all over the country have furnished their time tables and literature for this bureau and all current literature and folders will be supplied by these companies as fast as they are issued.

A specially constructed folder rack with pockets for 100 different folders has been installed and filled with the time tables and printed matter, available to anyone.

desiring to make use of the BUREAU.

Bureau Will Be Popular

There is a demand for such a convenience as this, people generally are not familiar with the lines of road over which they pass to their destination. They know nothing about connections or the time of trains, steamships or boats. They cannot always find literature pertaining to this matter and with all those points supplied through the GAZETTE TRAVEL BUREAU, the prospective traveler is enabled to map out his trip without the inconveniences which have heretofore beset him.

Attractive Travel Literature

Some very handsome descriptive matter is among the material at the Bureau. If you contemplate a trip to the west or northwest this winter or to the south or to the southwest, many of the folders and books will interest you. If you will journey to Cuba or take a cruise on some of the popular bodies of water to neighboring islands, the BUREAU will supply you with the proper literature descriptive of that particular point.

Make use of this Bureau, feel perfectly free to call or write at any time and your requests will receive careful attention.

MISS GERTRUDE DALLAS IN "THE GAMBLERS," AT MYERS THEATRE, TUESDAY, OCTOBER 24.

Whether life is a tragedy or comedy to me depends on the way I look at it.

You are stern, strong, unbroken, and unyielding. Plus qualities for a statesman, but not for a husband.

Of course you are right. You are always right, even if you are not, you have the horrible faculty of being able to prove that I am wrong. That is the penalty I pay for being the wife of a clever lawyer.

All the government asks is a victim. Politicians at Washington are satisfied if they can show reformers, reformers and muckrakers, that they do send a rich man to prison now and then.

"The Gamblers" will be seen at Myers Theatre, Tuesday night, Oct. 24th.

MRS. ERNEST THOMPSON

TO ADDRESS NATIONAL SUFFRAGE CONVENTION.
Mrs. Ernest Thompson Seton.

New York City.—The suffrage cause in America has no more interesting or active worker than Mrs. Grace Galt Seton, the talented wife of Ernest Thompson Seton, the well known writer. During the past year Mrs. Seton has been vice president of the Connecticut Woman Suffrage association and for two years she has been one of the vice presidents of the Greenwich, Conn., Equal Franchise League. In connection with both of these organizations she has given freely of her time and services in public speaking throughout the state of Connecticut. Mrs. Seton will address the National Woman Suffrage convention which meets in Louisville, Ky., Oct. 19th to 25th inclusive.

Mrs. Seton was born in Sacramento, California, and was educated at the Packard College Institute in Brooklyn. She began newspaper work in Paris in 1894, contributing local notes and historical sketches to the "Penny Press."

"Chronicle" and "Call" of San Francisco, and to magazines in London, Paris, and New York. In 1894 she was married to Mr. Seton and the following year began making books, designing covers, title-pages, and general book make-up.

In addition to her talents, Mrs. Seton possesses rare beauty. Her personal attractions, added to her accomplishments, form an unusual combination. Mr. Seton has found in her a sympathetic and devoted companion who has been of the greatest help to him in his work. Several of his books have been illustrated with marginal sketches by his wife.

Mrs. Seton is a pleasing and convincing speaker, earnest and sincere in her efforts for the cause of woman's enfranchisement, and always holds the attention of her audience.

The Girl from His Town

"I think you are crazy," the duchess exclaimed.

But Blair repeated: "That's all right. I mean to say as far as I am concerned—"

And, Galorey, in order to stand by his lady, murmured:

"My dear chap, you have been dreaming."

But Blair met the Englishman's gray eyes with his blue ones. "I did have a bottle of champagne, Gordon, that's a fact, but it couldn't make me see what I did see."

"Dan," the duchess of Breakwater broke in, "let Gordon take you home, like a dear. You're really ragging in a ridiculous way."

Blair looked at her steadily, and as he did so he repeated:

"That's all right, Lily, Gordon cares a lot, and the truth of the matter is that I do not."

She grew very pale.

"I would have stuck to my word, of course," he went on, "but we'd have been infernally unhappy and ended up in the divorce courts. Now, this little scene here of yours lets me out, and I don't lay it up against either of you."

"Gordon!" she appended to her lover, "why, in heaven's name, don't you speak!"

The Englishman realized that while he was glad at heart, he regretted that he had been the means of her losing the chance of her life.

"What do you want me to say, Lily?" he exclaimed with a desperate gesture. "I can't tell him I don't love you. I have loved you, God help me, for ten years."

She could have killed him for it.

"I can tell you, Dan, if you want me to," Galorey went on, "that I don't believe she cares a penny for any one on the face of the earth, for you or me."

Old Dan Blair's son showed his business training. His one idea was to "get out," and as he didn't care who the duchess of Breakwater loved or didn't love, he wanted to break away as fast as he could. He sat down at the table under the light of the lamp and drew out his wallet with its compact, thick little check book, the millionaire's pass to most of the things that he wants.

"You've taught me a lot," he said to the duchess of Breakwater, "and my father sent me over here for that."

"Dan, I really don't care a pin for the money—I don't."

I have been awfully fond of you, too, I thought I was fonder than I am, I guess. At any rate I want to stand by one of my promises. That old place of yours—Hainer court—now that's got to be fixed up."

He made a few computations on paper, lifted the pad to her with the figures on it, round, generous and full.

"At home," he said, "in Blairtown, we have what we call 'engagement parties,' when each fellow brings a present to the girl, but this is what we might call a 'broken engagement party.' Now, I can't, the boy went on, 'give this money to you very well; it won't look right. We will have to fix that up some way or other. You will have to say you got an unexpected inheritance from some uncle in Australia." He smiled at Galorey: "We'll fix it up together."

His candor, his simplicity, were so charming, he stood before the two so young, so clear, so clean, that a sudden tenderness for him, and a sense of what she had lost, what she never had had, made her exclaim:

"Dan, I really don't care a pin for the money—I don't!"

She held out her hand, and the other man and held fast. Galorey said:

"Very well, let it go at that. You don't care for the money, but you will take it just the same. Now, don't for God's sake, tell him that you care for him."

He made her meet his eyes this time; stronger than she, Galorey forced her to be sincere. She set Dan free and he turned and left them standing there facing each other. He softly crossed the room, and looking back, he saw them, tall, distinguished, both of them under the lamplight—enemies, and yet the closest friends bound by the strongest tie in the world.

As Dan went out through the curtains of the room and they fell behind him the duchess of Breakwater sank down in the chair by the side of the table; she buried her face. Gordon Galorey bent over her and again took her in his arms, and she suffered it.

CHAPTER XX.

A Hand Clasp.

It was one o'clock. Blair called a hansom and told the driver to take him to the Carlton, and leaning back in the vehicle he breathed a long sigh. He looked like his father, but he didn't know it. He felt old. He was a man and a free one and a free one, and the sense of this liberty began to refresh him like a breeze over parched earth. He thought over what he had left for a second, stopped longest in plying Galorey, then went into the Carlton restaurant to order some supper, for he began to feel the need of food. He had not time to drink his wine and partake of the cold pheasant before he saw that opposite him the two people who had taken their table were Letty Lane and Pontotowsky.

The woman's slender back was turned to Blair, and his heart gave a leap of pain at the sight of the mail with her, and the cruel suffering began again.

Dan gave up the idea of eating; drank a whole bottle of champagne, then pushed it away from him violently. "Hold up," he told himself, "you're getting dangerous; this drinking won't do." So he sat drumming on the table looking into the air. When those two got up to go, however, he could go with them; that was sure. He could never see them go out together again; no—no—no! As his brain grew a bit clearer he saw that they were having a heated discussion between them, and as the room emptied finally, save for themselves, Dan, though he could not hear what Pontotowsky said, understood that he was urging something which the girl did not wish to grant. When they left he rose as well, and at the door of the restaurant the actress and her companion paused, and Dan saw her face, deadly pale. There were tears in her eyes.

"For God's sake!" he heard her murmur, and she impatiently drew her cloak around her shoulders. Pontotowsky put out his hand to help her, but she drew back from him, exclaiming violently: "Oh, no—no!" Before he was aware what he was doing, Dan was holding his hand out to Miss Lane.

How she turned to him! God of dreams! How she took in one cold hand his hand; just the grasp a man needs to lead him to offer the service of his life. Her hand was icy—it thrilled him to his marrow.

"Oh—you—" she breathed. "Hello!"

No words could have been more commonplace, less in the category of dramatic or poetic welcome, but they were music to the boy, and when the actress looked at him with a ghost of a smile on her trembling lips, Dan was sure there was some kind of blessing in the greeting.

"I am going to see you home," he said with determination, and she caught at it:

"Yes, yes, don't. Will you?"

"The third member of the party had not spoken. A servant fetched him a light to which he bent, touching his cigar. Then he lifted his head—a handsome one—with its cold and indifferent eyes, to Letty Lane.

"Good night, Miss Lane." A deep color crept under his dark skin.

"Come," said the actress eagerly, "come along; my motor is out there and I am crazy tired. That is all there is about it. Come along."

Snatched from a marriage contract, still bitter from his jealous anger, this—to be alone with her—by the side of this white, fragrant, wonderful creature—to have been turned to by her, to be alone with her, the duchess of Breakwater out of his horizon, Pontotowsky gone—Oh, it was sweet to him! They had rolled out from the Carlton down toward the square and he put his arm around her waist, his voice shook:

"You are dead tired! And when I saw that brute with you tonight I could have shot him."

"Take your arm away, please."

"Take it away. I don't like it. Let my hand go. What's the matter with you? I thought I could trust you."

He said humbly: "You can—certainly you can."

"I am tired—tired—tired!"

Under his breath he said: "Put your head on my shoulder, Letty, darling."

And she turned on him neatly as violently as she had on Pontotowsky, and burst into tears, crouching almost in the corner of the motor away from him, both her hands upon her breast.

"Oh, can't you see how you bother me? Can't you see I want to rest and be all alone? You are like them all—like them all. Can't I rest anywhere?"

The very words she used were those he had thought of when he saw her dance at the theater, and his heart broke within him.

"You can," he stammered. "Rest right here. God knows I want you to rest more than anything. I won't touch you or breathe again or do anything you don't want me to."

She covered her face with her hands and sat so without speaking to him. The light in her motor shone over her like a kindly star, as, wrapped in her filmy things, she lay, a white rose blown into a sheltered nook. After a little she wiped her eyes and said more naturally:

"You look perfectly dreadful, boy! What have you been doing with yourself?"

They had reached the Savoy. It seemed to Dan they were always just driving up to where some one opened a door, out of which she was to fly away from him. He got out before her and helped her from the car.

"Well, I've got a piece of news to tell you. I have broken my engagement with the duchess."

This brought her back far enough into life to make her exclaim: "Oh, I am glad! That's perfectly fine! I don't know when I've heard anything that pleased me so much. Come and see me tomorrow and tell me all about it."

CHAPTER XXI.

Ruggles Returns.

Dan did not fall asleep until morning, and then he dreamed of Blairtown and the church and a summer evening and something like the drone of the flies on the window pane soothed him, and came into his waking thoughts, for at noon he was violently shaken by the shoulder and a man's voice called him as he opened his eyes and looked into Ruggles' face.

"Gee Whittaker!" Ruggles exclaimed. "You are one of the seven sleepers! I've been here something like seventeen minutes, whistling and making all kinds of barnyard noises."

As Dan welcomed him, rubbing the sleep from his eyes, Ruggles told him that he had come over "the pond" just for the wedding.

"There isn't going to be any wedding, Josh! Got out of all that last night."

Ruggles had the breakfast card in his hand, which the waiter had brought in, and Dan, taking it from his friend, ordered a big breakfast.

"I'm as hungry as the dickens, Ruggles, and I guess you are, too."

"What was the matter with the duchess?" Ruggles asked. "Were you too young for her, or not rich enough?"

Significantly the boy answered: "One too many, Josh," and Ruggles winced at the response.

"Here are the fellows with my trunk and things," he announced as the porters came in with his luggage. "Just drop them there, boys; they're going to fix some kind of a room later."

Blair's long silk-lined coat lay on a chair where he had flung it, his hat beside it, and Ruggles went over to the corner and lifted up a fragrant glove. It was one of Letty Lane's gloves which Dan had found in the motor and taken possession of. The young man had gone to his dressing room and begun running his bath, and Ruggles, laying the glove on the table, said to himself:

"I knew he would get rid of the duchess, all right."

But when Dan came back into the room later in his dressing gown for breakfast, Ruggles said:

"You'll have to send her back her glove, Dannie."

At the sight of it beside the breakfast tray Dan blushed scarlet. He picked up the fragrant object.

"That's all right; I'll take care of it."

"Is 'Mandalay' running the same as ever?" Ruggles asked over his bacon and eggs.

"Same as ever."

Ruggles saw he had not returned in vain, and that he was destined to take up his part of the business just as he had laid it out for himself to Lord Galorey. "It's up to me now; I'll have to take care of the actress, and I'm darned if I haven't got a job. If Dan colors up like that at the sight of her glove, I wonder what he does when he holds her hand?"

"The Foundation of the Second Temple Laid, Ezra II:1-16; Golden Text—Enter into his gates with thanksgiving and into his courts with praise, Ps. 124.

(1) Verse 1—How long had they likely been in the land when this general gathering at Jerusalem took place?

(2) What should have the right of way, or first place, our own business or that of the church?

(3) When the people as "one man," give up their business to attend to religious gatherings, what is the effect upon their general prosperity?

(4) Verse 2—Why is there a special obligation upon intellectually and financially strong men, to take a leading part in church work?

(5) Verses 3-6—What was the spiritual effect in those days, of the observance of the ceremonial law of Moses?

(6) Would God have planned for so much ceremony and ritual for an educated and spiritually enlightened people? (See Isa. 1:11-16.)

(7) When and why was the Mosaic ceremonial law abolished?

(8) What is the sacrifice which every Christian is under obligation to offer up daily?

(9) Verse 7—Should money given to build churches be regarded as an investment, and may we expect any financial returns?

(10) Verses 8-9—What practical lessons may we learn from the way these men organized, and from the vigor of the leaders in seeing the organization was effective?

(11) Verses 10-11—What is the practical effect of a proper ceremony for special church services, such as the laying of a foundation stone, or the opening of a church?

(12) Would it be a good thing for the church to re-establish band music in its services? Why or why not?

(13) Point out its appropriateness and say what psalm they sang together.

(14) Should there be room and opportunity for spontaneous shouts of praise as in this case, in the most carefully prepared church ceremony?

(15) In spiritual and other meetings, the people are encouraged to show their appreciation and express their feelings; why should it not be the same in religious gatherings?

(16) Verses 12-13—Why did some of these people shout for joy and some for sorrow?

(17) About how many years was it since the former Temple was burned?

(18) Were those that sorrowed and those that rejoiced both right? Give your reasons.

(19) Chap. IV Verses 1-5—Why did these enemies of the Jews offer their services to help build the Temple?

(20) Should help ever be received for the church from those who are not religious?

(21) What motive did these people have in trying to frustrate the building of the Temple? (This is one of the questions that may be answered in writing by members of the club.)

(22) What is our duty when we are opposed in our Christian work?

New Philippine Industry.
Making two blades of grass grow where only one grew before has been outside in the culture of silkworms in the Philippines. Ceylon silkworms which produced cocoons of a bright golden yellow, have been crossed with the Japanese breed, the result being a pure white cocoon giving a crop of silk nine times a year, compared with the usual two or three crops of the Japanese and Chinese worms.

A BALD-HEADED WOMAN.
Shorn of Her Crown of Beauty, Loses in Love and Marriage.

Hair is certainly most necessary to woman. Who could love and marry a bald-headed woman? What charms could an array to offset such a disfigurement?

A woman's goal is usually love and marriage. Her crowning glory is her hair. The loss of her hair mars her beauty, happiness, and success. Yet right here in Janeville, there are thousands of women who are neglecting or injuring their hair to such an extent that it is only a matter of time when it will be utterly ruined.

Many women destroy the beauty of their hair through thoughtlessness or ignorance of certain facts. They use curling irons overcoated, or to excess, which destroys the natural oil of the hair, causing it to split, break, and come out. They do not shampoo their hair often enough, or too often. They use soaps or preparations which contain ingredients positively harmful to the scalp and hair.

As a result of such treatment, dandruff is created, the hair loosens, loses color, falls out, and baldness commences, unless proper and prompt precautions are taken in time. Then again, microbes and certain diseases bring about unhealthy scalp and hair conditions.

Almost any woman may rid herself of dandruff and diseased scalp and hair if she will but use the right remedy. We have that remedy, and we will positively guarantee that it will either cure dandruff and baldness or it will not cost the user anything.

That's a pretty broad statement, but we will back it and prove it with our own money. We will return your money if you do not find that Rexall's "32" Hair Tonic is an entirely satisfactory remedy that will promote hair growth and overcome scalp and hair troubles; that it will grow hair even on bald heads, unless all life in the hair roots has been extinguished, the follicles closed, and the scalp is glazed and shiny. It gets its name from the fact that it grew hair in 32 out of 100 cases, where it received a thoroughly hard, impartial, and practical test.

We want you to try Rexall's "32" Hair Tonic at our risk. You surely cannot lose anything by doing so, while you have everything to gain. You can't get this tonic over, and then come and see us about it for your own.

You'll be well repaid for your visit to our store. Remember, you can get Rexall's Remedies in this community only at our store—The Rexall Store, The Smith Drug Co., 14 West Milwaukee St. Janeville Wis.

They'll Get It, Anyway.
Within a few days Louis Dodge of the St. Louis Times will arrive in New York on a little visit. While Mr. Dodge has often been in Kansas City, St. Joseph, Duluth and other widely known middle western cities, he has never been turned loose in a city that counts its population up in the millions. Therefore he is worried a little about the way he should act in New York. Recently a New York friend received a letter from the St. Louis man, asking for a little information. Among other things he wrote: "Should I carry my money in a belt or in my shoe?" "It doesn't make any difference," replied his friend. "You can't hide money in New York."—New York Telegraph.

Keep the Scalp Clean.
A distinguished physician states that if the scalp is kept thoroughly clean one rarely contracts contagious diseases. This doctor, who has worked long among immigrants and the poorer classes, declares that when the hair is allowed to become dirty and matted it is almost impossible to escape infection.

Headache?—It's Your Liver
Too Many People Take Headache Powders When a Liver Tonic Is Needed.

Try Olive Tablets—the Substitute for Calomel.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are the one substitute for dangerous calomel. They do all of calomel's work without any of its bad after effects.

There is no necessity, when you take Olive Tablets, of following them up with nasty, sickening, gripping salts or castor oil, as you should after taking calomel.

Olive Tablets do not contain calomel or any other metallic drugs; they are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil, sugar-coated, easy to take, and never gripes or causes weakness.

Thousands of people take one every night at bedtime just to prevent disorder of the liver, constipation, bad breath, pimples, headache, etc.

Olive Tablets are made of pure vegetable compounds mixed with olive oil.

Dr. Edwards, calomel's old enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets after seventeen years of practice among patients afflicted with liver and bowel troubles.

Try them for a week. Take one on retiring nightly.

GETTING TICKETS FOR THE WORLD'S SERIES

WAITING ALL NIGHT FOR TICKETS TO THE WORLD'S SERIES.

New York City.—After waiting all night outside the doors of the St. James building, New York, in order to be in line for the opening of the New York Baseball Club, on October 12th, there was a great rush for tickets to view the contest on Saturday, October 14th at the New York Polo Grounds between the Giants and the Athletics. Shortly after 7 A. M. the police reserves had to be called out to control the biggest street crowd New York has seen for years.

MOST UNIQUE SHOP IN THE WORLD.

Minder lathes at work both at the machine shop and repairing an automobile.

John, Kansas.—What is probably the most unique and successful machine shop in the world is the Minder plant at Gas City, Kansas. The fact that this shop is operated by two girls who actually do the largest share of the work from choice and not from necessity, is not so important to the patrons as the fact that their work is the best that can be produced in the community. There is nothing within the range of the modern machine shop that these girls cannot build. Their names are Susie and Emma Minder, and their ages 24 and 22 respectively.

They recently completed through their own skill and efforts a four cylinder gasoline engine constructed from the molten metal to the finished product throughout. Difficult repair jobs which perplex the ordinary mechanic, are apparently easy for them.

MAY BECOME PRESIDENT OF CHINESE REPUBLIC.

Dr. Sun Yat Sen, the Chinese reformer who for years has been regarded as the head of the revolutionary movement in China, is believed at Peking to be slated for the presidency when the revolutionists organize a provisional government. There is said to be a standing offer from the Peking government of $50,000 for the body of Dr. Sun Yat Sen, dead or alive. He is now in the United States raising funds for the revolution.

3,000,000 Every Minute.

The civilized nations of the world strike 3,000,000 matches every minute of the 24 hours. Americans use up 700,000,000 a year. Some of the match plants are very large, one on the Pacific coast covering 210 acres, with 32 miles of railroad which supply the match machines with 200,000 feet of sugar pine and yellow pine logs a day.

BREAKS UP A COLD AND CURES GRIPPE.

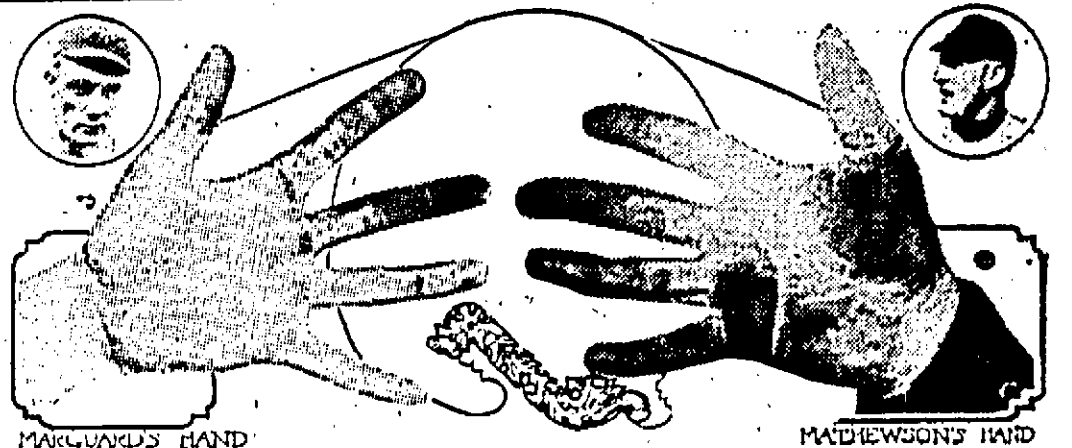

The Most Severe Cold and Grippe Misery Will Be Relieved in Just A Few Hours.

You can surely end Grippe and break up the most severe cold either in head, chest, back, stomach or limbs, by taking a dose of Pope's Cold Compound every two hours until three consecutive doses are taken.

It promptly relieves the most miserable neuralgia pains, headache, dizziness, head and nose stuffed up, feverishness, sneezing, sore throat, mucous catarrhal discharges, running of the nose, soreness, stiffness and rheumatic twinges.

Take this harmless Compound as directed, without interference with your usual duties and with the knowledge that there is no other medicine, made anywhere else in the world, which will cure your cold or end Grippe misery as promptly and without any other assistance or bad after-effects as a 25 cent package of Pope's Cold Compound, which any druggist in the world can supply.

Pope's Cold Compound is the result of three years' research at a cost of more than fifty thousand dollars, and contains no quinine, which we have conclusively demonstrated is not effective in the treatment of colds or grippe.

Not the Other Extremity. From Canon Beeching comes the following story: "It was the morning after the banquet, and a solitary friend who had set beside Stubbs, happening to meet him, asked if he got home all right. The bishop looked slightly surprised at the question, but at once added, with an apparent gleam of comprehension, 'Oh, yes, it was only my boots that were tight.'"
